tion on record as in favor of supporting national candidates who pledge their support to the proposed equal rights amendment to the federal constitution.

The resolution, which was introduced by Mrs. Raymond Robins, wife of the chairman of the last national convention of the progressive party, was branded by some delegates as an anti-Wilson move, despite vehement denials by Mrs. Robins and others who signed the resolution.

The resolution provoked a long and warm debate, in which these denials were supplemented by declarations that the resolution was nonpartisan, and that it was not aimed at President Wilson, who had not come out in support of the federal amendment.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the association, was vehement in her denunciation of other society commercial and banking concerns, retarding only his chairmanship of the First Bank, one of the foremost of Japanese financial institutions.

She supported other speakers, who said the passage of the resolution would hurt the suffrage cause all over the United States. She drew attention to the fact that President Wilson favors woman suffrage and voted for it in his own state.

After the Robins resolution was defeated the convention adopted a resolution reaffirming its nonpartisan attitude toward national political parties. The resolution also stated that this policy did not preclude the right of any member of the association from working against the election of any candidate of women in states where they have the right to vote, that the resolution introduced in the convention several days ago by President Carrie Chapman Catt that the immediate and principal aim of the association was the passage of the federal amendment, and that all state work was only preparatory thereto. The subject will be introduced in another form, Mrs. Catt said, as the resolution, because of the opposition it had met, apparently had been misunderstood. The convention spent much of the afternoon in deciding on methods of carrying on its campaign for suffrage.

The president did not speak on the method by which he would bring about woman suffrage, but said "we shall not quarrel in the long run over the method of it."

The women in their speeches also failed to mention the question of method.

The president was warmly applauded before, during and after his speech. With Mrs. Wilson, he sat during several addresses. Fergs expressed before the meeting that he might be "cheated" did not materialize. At the conclusion of his address Mrs. Catt thanked him for speaking.

A Little Impatient.

Declaring that sometimes he became a little impatient over discussions about the channels through which the voter for women are to come, the president caused the delegates to applaud by saying, "I have full here the wholesome contagion of the occasion."

Mr. Wilson aroused the greatest enthusiasm when he said whenever he had come to Atlantic City previously he had come to fight against somebody, but that on his present trip, he had come "to fight with somebody." The women in the boxes, the orchestra, and the balcony stood and cheered.

The meeting came to an end with the president and Mrs. Wilson standing between suffrage leaders, joining in singing patriotic songs.

The President's Address.

In his address the president did not mention his previously expressed belief that suffrage should come through action by the states.

At the time the United States was formed, Mr. Wilson said, only a boy who knew enough to run the nation, but since the civil war the country has been faced more and more by social questions and women have more and more taken an interest in public affairs.

The whole nature of our political questions has been altered," he said.

Speaking of the future of the movement Mr. Wilson declared that the war was rising and would come to its flood.

The president talked for fifteen minutes, just the time occupied by the other speakers. At the conclusion of his address he went to his hotel.

Tomorrow morning he will go to Long Branch, N. J., by motor, or perhaps his summer home there.

MEETING GOES ON RECORD AGAINST PARTISANSHIP.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8.—The National American Woman Suffrage Association today reaffirmed its policy of nonpartisanship as an organization toward national political parties, and defeated by an overwhelming vote an attempt to place the association on record as in favor of supporting national candidates who pledge their support to the proposed equal rights amendment to the federal constitution.

GERMANY MAKES A BID FOR DUTCH PROFESSORS

(Associated Press Correspondence.)

The Hague, Netherlands, Sept. 8.—Having failed to recruit the staff of the proposed Flemish university of Ghent among native professors, Germany is making every effort to persuade young Dutch professors to take posts in the new institution. The most tempting offers are going thither. Professors are held out of salaries far above those paid by the Belgian government.

Pershing asserted that none had been offered and none was in contemplation.

The war game in the Caza Grande valley, recently announced, is expected to engage attention of expeditory leaders next.

CHARLES MOORE, LOST, IS LOCATED IN TEXAS

The most tempting offers are going thither. Professors are held out of salaries far above those paid by the Belgian government.

Moore, who had forgotten his name and previous places of residence, had been employed several weeks as a guard not many blocks from his former home in this city.

INTENSIFYING DEVICES.

Denver, Sept. 8.—Orders for installation of safety devices at grade crossings in Colorado are to be issued next Tuesday by the state public utilities commission. It was admitted today.

SHOTS ARE EXCHANGED ACROSS RIO GRANDE

(Associated Press Correspondence.)

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 8.—Charles Moore, 26, missing from the engineering corps of the United States forest service at Fraser, Colo., since July 3, was found here late today by a former acquaintance.

Moore, who had forgotten his name and previous places of residence, had been employed several weeks as a guard not many blocks from his former home in this city.
